

The Border Policy Research Institute & The Center for Canadian-American Studies Present:

Cross-Border Visiting Fellow Michael O'Shea Drop-in Brown Bag

Michael O'Shea is a PhD candidate studying under Dr. Stephanie Waterman (Onondaga, Turtle Clan) at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

His research is centered on Education Mobility and Indigenous Sovereignty.

He will provide insight about several Canadian universities that have recently adopted policies to extend domestic tuition rates to Indigenous students living in (territories claimed by) the United States and how other universities in Canada may follow suit, bringing their commitments to Indigenization and reconciliation in line with the Jay Treaty.

Michael's visit is co-sponsored by the Border Policy Research Institute and The Center for Canadian American Studies.

About the event:

An opportunity to meet Michael O'Shea and discuss his research on the Jay Treaty.

Location: Canada House Collaborative Space

Room: CA 108
